

UNC
SCHOOL OF LAW

NORTH CAROLINA LAW REVIEW

Volume 42 | Number 1

Article 7

12-1-1963

Civil Rights and the South a Symposium

North Carolina Law Review

Follow this and additional works at: <http://scholarship.law.unc.edu/nclr>

Part of the Law Commons

Recommended Citation

North Carolina Law Review, Civil Rights and the South a Symposium, 42 N.C. L. REV. (1963).

Available at: <http://scholarship.law.unc.edu/nclr/vol42/iss1/7>

This Comments is brought to you for free and open access by Carolina Law Scholarship Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in North Carolina Law Review by an authorized administrator of Carolina Law Scholarship Repository. For more information, please contact law_repository@unc.edu.

CIVIL RIGHTS AND THE SOUTH

A SYMPOSIUM

The editors of the North Carolina Law Review take great pleasure in dedicating this, the first issue of volume 42, to a symposium entitled "Civil Rights and the South."

The articles included herein have been purposely limited. From this brevity comes an enticement to read the presentation in its entirety, for it is only by doing this that the reader will be placed in a position to ponder the many problems of the greatest social revolution of our times. Although it is hoped that this symposium will provide some solutions to the multitude of legal problems encountered, it is primarily designed to present several points of view on issues which have not yet been laid to rest either in the courts or in the forum of public opinion. Its purpose is to instill in the reader a desire to reach his own conclusions after being supplied with the necessary tools. It is felt that a rational conclusion can only be reached by examining the strengths and weaknesses of these views, and we trust that we have fulfilled our purpose in providing for the readers the tools with which to work.

THE EDITORS

